Recognition

Use the MRAIC designation with pride. Licensed (or Registered) Architects are also encouraged to use the title “Architect” after their name. This small effort is a great way to highlight the important roles Architects hold in society.

Knowledge

Keep current on new developments with straight-forward timely information about and for the profession through RAIC’s extensive communications tools.

Network

Immerse yourself in the profession at RAIC’s Festival of Architecture to learn, network and celebrate with Architects from coast-to-coast-to-coast.

Access to talent

Access our recruitment service to hire students, Interns and Architects who meet your special requirements.

Support RAIC’s efforts

RAIC promotes design excellence, innovation and environmental responsibility, ensuring that our profession and our communities share a bright future.

- With more than 80 Honours and Awards each year highlighting the best architecture.
- Practice support documents such as the Canadian Handbook of Practice for Architects, standard forms of contract and RAIC Practice Builders – invaluable for your practice.
- Ongoing liaison with other associations – provincial and territorial associations of architects, Canadian Architectural Certification Board, and University Schools of Architecture moving the Profession forward.

Professional Development

Fulfill provincial Continuing Education requirements with leading courses, such as the Sustainable Design for Canadian Buildings series - developed and delivered by RAIC.
